THE ALECTOR e-LIBRARY

The Project's online resource is a multimodal tool to deal with Project information flows, especially designed to deal with and exceed the Project's lifetime. The objective is to overcome Project training and implementation challenges in terms of Knowledge Transfer and Access to domain specific information; to serve Project Knowledge Requirements by pooling expertise & good practices at transnational level. An electronic Library, also referred to as e-Lib, refers to a portal, intranet, extranet or internet site that replicates the resources of a physical library in an electronic format, while improving access and search capabilities. An e-Lib can provide for resources and documentation, or can combine internal documents with external resources to provide a full collection of pertinent information for distribution to partners, students, association members, patients, and more. The Project's e-Lib is a searchable online resource containing hundreds of documents referring to Heritage Management, carefully collected through researching and documenting efforts over the last months. The e-Lib consists of three major parts to serve partner needs and requirement

A. is an important source of Protection, Conservation, Planning and Management of cultural heritage classes, types and resources that provides with a representative sampling of the needs of planners and managers.

B. It also contains a wide variety of tourism planning tools and academic articles classified in specific subject matter folders.

C. It offers a taxonomic library in the subject matter "Heritage Interpretation" extending from basics to highly complex products and services with cases studies and best practices form all over the world. It also entails a section related to the Interpretive Planning Process accompanied with exemplary interpretive plans.

RESPONSIBLE PARTNERS

The ENPI Financial Lead Beneficiary (FLB)(DD SA) delivers the Project's e-Library . IPA PP3 METGEM, operates the e-Library at the HERISCOUT Platform.

RESULTS

Being a multimodal permanent information source, the e-Library transfers 10 good practices in heritage and tourism planning. It helps ENPI, IPA Partners and social Partners in the project Area to understand and fully commit to heritage values, safeguard heritage and develop high added value, locally produced cultural goods; it guarantees e- accessibility to policy and decision makers so as to reshape policy context and policy recommendations in heritage interpretation.

ACCESSIBILITY

The ALECTOR e-Library is accessible by all e-Course participants at the HERISCOUT Platform.
